Political and economic situation in Egypt

In Egypt, as the state of emergency approaches the end of its third decade, the Government continued to make political stability a top priority while publicly expressing its intention to broaden political participation through such processes as decentralization and enhancement of laws regulating the political and social role of civil society. Critics nevertheless remained sceptical, pointing to slow progress on political reform.

Politics will be focused on the 2011 presidential election and on who will stand for the ruling National Democratic Party (NDP) - the incumbent, Hosni Mubarak, his son Gamal or another regime insider. Opposition parties may boycott the elections. The parliamentary elections in 2010 resulted in a victory for the ruling National Democratic Party and were accompanied by protest of the opposition that boycotted the second round of these elections after giving accusations of widespread irregularities in the first round.

Relative to many of its neighbours, Egypt has been characterized by political stability and largely devoid of sectarian strife. The government continues with its programme of economic reform to try to generate jobs for the roughly 600,000 people who enter the labour market every year and to raise living standards over the longer term. Real GDP growth picked up slightly to 5.1% in fiscal year 2009/10 (July-June) and should average 5.8% in 2010/11-2014/15. There is significant potential for strong real GDP growth in the long term. Egypt’s prime location as a base to export to Asia, Africa and Europe, a plentiful and low-cost workforce and strong productivity growth underpin the country’s potential. However, success will also depend on major improvements to its institutional and political effectiveness such as an increase in the efficiency of the bureaucracy, the development of a more effective commercial legal system, and taking steps to prevent sectarian strife, especially in the wake of the terrorist attack outside a church in Alexandria on 1 January 2011 that claimed over twenty lives.

A key foreign policy challenge continues to be: how to respond to growing upstream disquiet over treaties governing the use of Nile waters that strongly favor Egypt? Several riparian states have said that they want to revise the 1929 Nile Basin Treaty, which gives Egypt a nominal veto over the use of Nile waters by East African nations. Moreover, a 1959 treaty between Egypt and Sudan divided the Nile waters between the two countries, with Egypt taking the lion’s share (55.5bn cu metres/year), and excluded all of the other eight Nile basin countries. Egypt, which relies on the Nile for more than 95% of its water, has always maintained that both treaties are untouchable. The other Nile states increasingly question this. The referendum on Sudan which will most likely result in independence of South Sudan might also have an influence on these discussions. Egypt has been very much involved in the organisation of this referendum and also allowed voting for the referendum in Egypt where a huge amount of Sudanese refugees/asylum seekers are based.

Egypt also continued to play an important role in international politics, namely in the Middle East Peace process, though its efforts to play a role as broker between the different parties.

MDGs in Egypt

A 2010 MDG report of Egypt was launched with the support of the UN. It highlighted that, despite the negative effects of the various international crises, Egypt is making reasonable progress on most of the MDGs, while acknowledging that Egypt continues to face challenges with MDG 1 relating to the eradication of extreme poverty and MDG 3 relating to gender equality and the empowerment of women. Moreover, as in other countries, regional disparities and gender inequalities continue to persist. The UN in Egypt considers the MDG as the framework in which their activities are situated. However, taking into account the fact that Egypt is a middle income country, the MDGs are to be considered “Minimum Development Goals”, underscoring that Egypt needs to be more ambitious and go beyond the MDGs.
Regarding aid effectiveness and UN Reform, Egypt has made considerable progress in 2010 and provides an interesting example on how Aid Effectiveness reinforces efforts towards UN Reform. The Cairo Agenda, which was launched in August 2009, takes into account two major considerations: the principles embodied in the Paris Declaration and the Accra Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness (e.g. ownership, alignment, harmonization, managing for results, and mutual accountability), and the specific development challenges facing Egypt. In so doing, it highlights the need for progress in a number of areas, which are to be achieved through four key results or “deliverables”:

- A Situation Analysis (SA) to highlight key development challenges facing Egypt over the next five to ten years drawing on existing documentation and an inclusive process of consultation with national and international development partners, including UN Agencies;
- The identification of Egypt’s top development priorities for which the Government seeks the cooperation of international development partners;
- The setting-up or strengthening of results-based management (RBM) arrangements in the lead ministry or council for each thematic area in order to clarify development outcomes and results, roles and responsibilities, and facilitate the monitoring and reporting on results; and,
- A plan of action on aid effectiveness that embraces the other three deliverables, as well as other dimensions of aid effectiveness, such as mutual accountability mechanisms and the strengthening of aid information management systems.

There has been good progress on all four results since the launch of the Cairo Agenda in August 2009. The following is the status of these deliverables as of January 2011.

Deliverable 1: The Situation Analysis

From late 2009 to October 2010, a taskforce comprising a core group of eleven advisers nominated by Ministers and coordinated by Professor Heba Handoussa, a well-known Egyptian economist, prepared the document: “Situation Analysis: Key Challenges Facing Egypt.” This group eventually expanded to embrace more than eighty national experts from Government, civil society and the private sector. The taskforce carefully reviewed a vast array of official documents, including the Government’s “Eight Strategic Objectives” and the ongoing work on the Vision 2030 being undertaken by the Government’s Information Decision Support Centre (IDSC), as well as independent analyses of issues and challenges facing Egypt. It also attended more than twenty-five meetings with national and international development partners, including two full-day consultative meetings with approximately three hundred representatives from civil society, the private sector, academia and the media. Moreover, meetings were held with the Development Partners Group (DPG) and UN agencies to receive their comments on drafts of the Situation Analysis.

As noted by the Minister of International Co-operation, H.E. Fayza Aboul Naga, in her introduction to the “Situation Analysis”, the Government is appreciative of the constructive consultation process in preparing this document, “which has helped to clarify national medium-term priorities and propose policies, strategies and investments to facilitate progress on key development challenges.” She noted that the scope of the Situation Analysis “expanded from aid to development effectiveness, embracing both national and international resources, financial and human.” Moreover, in recognizing that the Situation Analysis is a “multi-stakeholder nationally-owned document,” the Minister “invites all stakeholders, including our development partners, to make full use of it in elaborating future strategic plans [...] in line with the Paris Principles on aid effectiveness.” Finally, the Minister notes that “Egypt hopes that this approach may become a model to be used by other developing countries in pursuing the Accra Agenda for Action in a way that meets national development priorities.”

Given the promising developments with the Situation Analysis, the UN Country Team decided at its UNDAF Orientation Retreat in February 2010 that it would not prepare a Common Country Assessment (CCA) but rather rely upon the Situation Analysis as the core document for the assessment of Egypt’s development situation. This decision had three important results: first, it aligned the UNDAF assessment process with the national, multi-stakeholder process that characterized the drafting of the Situation Analysis. Second, it reduced transaction costs (time and money) for both Government and the United Nations. Third, it set a positive example for other international partners to consider in their strategic planning processes in Egypt.

Deliverable 2: The Identification of Priority Development Areas

In terms of the second deliverable of the CAA, namely the identification of priority development areas, following its deliberations on the Situation Analysis in two Cabinet sessions in July 2010, the Cabinet of Ministers announced the Government’s updated development priorities, which are intended to guide its development partners in their strategic planning processes and in setting future policies and work plans. Through the Chair of the Cairo Agenda for Action Steering Committee, H.E. Minister Fayza Aboul Naga informed the UN on the following priority areas for the attention of the international development community:

- Institutional and human resource development;
- Basic education (pre-university, excluding literacy);
- Primary health services especially in poor areas, and including assistance in dealing with Hepatitis C;
- Population challenges in all aspects, including supporting the rights of the elderly and the handicapped;
- Environmental challenges of protecting our natural resources, including assistance in adopting environment protection policies across all activity sectors, in addressing industrial pollution and in supporting solar energy expansion;
- Decentralization especially at local administrative levels; and,
- Facilitation of the achievement of the MDGs.

Deliverable 3: Strengthening Results-based Management Arrangements

With regards to the third deliverable, the strengthening of results-based management (RBM) arrangements, the Government has designated the Ministry of State for Administrative Development (MSAD) to become a “centre of excellence” in RBM and to provide RBM services to other ministries in a systematic effort to improve the management of development cooperation. To assist the MSAD in this area, a project entitled “Strengthening Results Management Capacities to Support National Development” was prepared in consultation with the UN and development partners, and received co-funding from the Governments of Canada, Egypt, Germany and UNDP. The first phase of this capacity development project will begin in early 2011.

Deliverable 4: the Cairo Agenda Action Plan on Aid Effectiveness

Finally, the fourth deliverable entails a plan of action on aid effectiveness - one that embraces the other three deliverables, as well as other dimensions of aid effectiveness, such as mutual accountability mechanisms and the strengthening of aid information management and work areas that will be identified in the next round of the Paris Declaration monitoring survey, to be completed by early 2011.

Key aspects of the proposed 2011 workplan

UNDAF review and strategic planning workshops

In parallel to the "Cairo Agenda for Action: A Mutual Strategy for Development Cooperation," UN agencies and Government carried out a review of the current UNDAF (2007-2011) in mid 2009 and a series of strategic planning exercises in 2010, all of which have benefitted from the progress recorded on the Cairo Agenda work stream.

The UN has been a key player in the efforts towards better aid and development effectiveness, especially in relation with the Cairo Agenda for Action. The UNDAF reflects the main findings of the "Situation Analysis: Key Challenges Facing Egypt". The UNDAF also takes into account the updated priorities for development cooperation announced by the Cabinet following its approval of the Situation Analysis, as well as other considerations, including the results of the Mid-term Review of the current UNDAF (2007-2011), ongoing programmes, and deliberations during a series of strategic planning workshops on such considerations as the comparative advantages of the UN in middle income countries such as Egypt, the regional priorities of the Regional UNDG Team, and the five UNDAF programming principles (i.e., human rights-based approach, gender equity, environmental sustainability, results-based management, and capacity development).

Based on the above, the UNCT and Government have agreed on the following five UNDAF priority areas: Poverty Alleviation through Pro-Poor Growth and Equity; Quality Basic Services; Democratic Governance through Decentralization, Civic Engagement and Human Rights; Food Security and Nutrition; and Environmental Sustainability and Natural Resource Management. As outlined in the results matrix, the strategic focus of this UNDAF is maintained/kept at the outcome level, with outputs being developed and articulated in the specific agency country programme documents. There are 22 UNDAF Outcomes, each one involving the contribution and efforts of at least two UN agencies, that indicate specific, expected results in terms of institutional performance or human behaviour (individual or social change). While the number of outcomes is similar to the previous UNDAF, the outcomes in the UNDAF 2012-2016 are strongly focused on strategic results rather than ‘activities’. To reinforce the strategic intent of the UNDAF, a limited number of carefully selected performance indicators have been identified to guide programme design and facilitate monitoring and evaluation processes. Additionally, every UN agency has highlighted its proposed contribution to achieving relevant programmatic priority areas, which will also facilitate human and financial resource allocation during the programme planning process. The joint implementation of the UNDAF will be facilitated through the development of consolidated annual workplans per UNDAF Priority Area. This will ensure a better cooperation between UN Agencies, avoiding duplication in their programming, without having to go through a difficult, labour-intensive process. The annual workplans will be reviewed twice a year: mid year and through an annual report which will be discussed at the highest level with the Government, through the UNDAF Steering Committee.

In addition to this innovative initiatives which are meant to start implementation on 1 January 2012, the UN Country Team continued to work towards a more coherent UN at country level mainly through its current thirteen joint programmes, of which 3 are funded through the MDG Achievement Fund, while possibly at the start of 2011 two new joint programmes will be initiated (a joint programme on Safe cities focusing on Violence Against Women and Girls and sexual harassment and a Joint Programme on Food Security). In the UNDAF 2012 – 2016 possibilities for joint programmes have been identified and might already be initiated throughout 2011.

The operations management team also got reinforced in 2010 and is in the process of developing a Workplan for 2011 aiming to identify major common services among UN agencies which will allow to increase the quality of services while decreasing the cost of some services.

The 2011 workplan will be focused on the finalization of the UNDAF and its further preparations to enable its implementation starting as of 1 January 2012. UN agencies will develop their agency specific planning documents ensuring complete alignment with the UNDAF 2012 – 2016. Efforts towards increased coherence will continue through the development of additional joint programmes and through the development of a first consolidated annual workplan per UNDAF priority area for 2012.

The Cairo Agenda for Action will also be further implemented together with the Government. The UN will continue its role of bringing stakeholders together to ensure better development effectiveness in Egypt. One crucial element will be the start of the implementation of the Capacity Development for RBM (CD4RBM) project in the Ministry of State for Administrative Development.

Recommendations
In concluding, 2011 will be a bridge year towards the implementation of the third UNDAF in Egypt, which will undoubtly result in a more coherent UN at the country level despite some challenges the UN is still facing such as the use of different templates for agency specific country programme documents. Further aligning these procedures and templates between UN Agencies at headquarters would benefit and result in a more coherent approach towards common programming. The revised CCA/UNDAF Guidelines on the other hand have provided the necessary flexibility in common programming at the country level. Finally, it is also worth mentioning that experiences and lessons learned from Delivery as One countries, after three years of implementation, should be taken into account and will benefit other countries if they were better communicated and shared. This is of special importance for the Arab States, which do not have a DaO country in the region.

In closing, Mr. Secretary-General, I wish to highlight that our 2010 achievements represent the outcome of the substantive cooperation of the UN Country Team and all UN staff in shaping and positioning the UN development agenda in the context of Egypt’s national priorities.

Allow me to take this opportunity to renew the commitment of the Egypt UN Country Team to continue to move forward on UN reform and aid effectiveness in Egypt in a consistent and realistic fashion.

Result Area 1: Coordination for Results

- UK support to formulation/implementation of relevant national strategies or plans e.g. JAS/NDP/PRSP

- Cairo Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness is implemented, in particular the first expression of the Agenda, the “Situation Analysis”, which give an overview of the socio-economic and political situation of Egypt and aid enable prioritisation for the UN System with its Development Partners in Egypt.

- Situation Analysis finalized and endorsed by the Government, DPs and UN through support project of the UNAID, Cairo Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness (CAA).

- Situation Setting and Strategic Planning exercise implemented.

- From late 2009 to October 2010, a taskforce (through a consultative process with the UN, DPs and CSOs) prepared the document, “Situation Analysis: Key Challenges Facing Egypt”, reflecting both official and independent analyses of issues and challenges that Egypt will face in the medium term. The Situation Analysis is the analytical framework for the UNDAF 2012-2016, replacing a Common Country Assessment as was done in the previous two UNDAF cycles. DPs have also endorsed the document and agreed to use it as the foundational document when preparing their development strategies in Egypt.

- In terms of Government, the Ministry of International Cooperation (MoIC) provided the Cabinet with an executive summary of the Situation Analysis. The Cabinet reviewed this summary during its meetings of 14 and 28 July. Shortly thereafter, the Minister of International Cooperation, H.E. Fayza Aboulnaga, sent to the CAA Steering Committee (through its chair, Dr. Talaat Abdel-Malek) the following encouraging message: The “Cabinet has reviewed and discussed the Situation Analysis Executive Summary during two meetings and is appreciative of the work done to produce this important document. The document has been approved in principle as a basis for identifying Egypt’s development challenges and priorities.”

UNDG - RCAR 2010 - Egypt
announced the Government’s updated development priorities after deliberations on the Situation Analysis. Besides assistance in achieving the MDGs, six other priorities (institutional and human resource development; basic education (pre-university, excluding literacy); primary health services especially in poor areas, and including assistance in dealing with virus C; population challenge in all its aspects, including supporting the rights of the aged and the handicapped; environmental challenges of protecting our natural resources, including assistance in adopting environment protection policies across all activity sectors, in addressing industrial pollution and in supporting solar energy expansion; decentralization especially at local administrative levels) are intended to guide its development partners in their strategic planning processes and in setting future policies and work plans. An official launch of the Situation Analysis expected to happen in early 2011 is expected to reinforce the Government’s message in terms of development priorities.

UN plan to support the implementation of the Millennium Declaration, including scaling up IADG/MDG initiatives

UN plan to support the implementation of the Millennium Declaration, including scaling up IADG/MDG initiatives

UNDAF supports government priority areas directly contributing to progress on the MDGs especially on areas where Egypt is lagging behind (gender, regional disparities and climate change).

Improved public awareness campaign on MDGs

Mid Term Review 2010 of the MDGs finalized by the UN in Egypt.

The report was finalized and Egypt presented it at the 2010 Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), entitled: “Egypt’s Progress Towards Achieving the MDGs 2010” at the MDGs Review Summit convening at the United Nations General Assembly.

MDG advocacy and communications campaign organized by the UN Communications Group, including ample media coverage and awareness raising events such as the “Stand up against Poverty Campaign” and the “MDG awareness week” at the Cairo University. A documentary film on Climate change and Environment is currently being finalized.”

UN support to capacity development strategies

Capacity development components systematically mainstreamed into UN projects and programs and into the review of the UNDAF.

Capacity Development Support Project on Results Based Management implemented so that the government can better monitor, plan, communicate on the results (see details in the Cairo Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness).

Capacity development is central in the elaboration of the next UNDAF cycle.

Capacity development started with x number of ministries.

Capacity development has been systematically mainstreamed into UN projects and programs and a UN support project entitled “Strengthening Results Management Capacities to Support National Development” was prepared with the assistance of UNDP in consultation with development partners, including the Ministry of State for Administrative Development and the Ministry of Finance. The support project, which is to be funded by the Governments of Egypt, Canada, Germany as well as UNDP, aims to build up the capacities of the Ministry of State for Administrative Development to become a “center of excellence” that will be able to provide RBM services to other Ministries.

UN assistance to national authorities for the preparation of the national report on the implementation of the Brussels Programme of Action of LDCs

Other

NDG - RCAR 2010 - Egypt
Planned efforts to making use of national systems in the areas such as programme/project reporting, PRS/sectoral monitoring and evaluation systems, annual PRS/sectoral performance reviews, national procurement systems, etc.

Cairn Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness will be further implemented in 2010. Paris principles will be used as guidance for all aid effectiveness principles.

The UN system and partners in development provide timely information to the DECODE Unit of the MOiC. DECODE reports published and distributed in a timely fashion to the UN and partners in development. The DPs ODA Matrix was updated in 2010 and has been distributed amongst DP, MOiC and other partners. It is also accessible via the UN Coordination Office’s Intranet.

The DPs ODA Matrix was updated in 2010 and has been distributed amongst DP, MOiC and other partners. It is also accessible via the UN Coordination Office’s Intranet.

Conversations between the UNCO, the African Development Bank and MOiC started to look into ways for financing an “Aid information management system”. It aims to be a database of aid commitments, disbursements and activities, together with a mechanism for keeping the information continuously updated. Waiting for feedback from MOiC.

UN Resident Coordinator is the Chair of the Development Partners Group and facilitates the implementation of the Cairo Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness. Membership of the DPG is expanded to include all UN agencies, multilateral and bilateral donors present in the field. A fully fledged capacity development project on RBM (third deliverable of the Cairo Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness) - UN agencies, multilateral and bilateral donors present in the DPG.

- N. senior GoE officials, UN agency representatives, donor representatives and donors active in the DPG.
- DPG meetings held with participation of UN agencies, multilateral and bilateral donors.
- 12 DPG members participating in the DECODE/ADAC Paris Declaration Survey.
- Capacity building Development Project on RBM implementation started.

DPG is currently composed of 23 bilateral partners and 12 multilateral organizations (Argentina; Australia; Belgium; Brazil; Canada; Finland; France; Germany; India; Ireland; Italy; Japan; Korea; Mexico; Netherlands; Norway; Russia; Spain; Turkey; United Kingdom, and the USA. Multilateral organizations are: African Development Bank; EU Delegation; EAPD, FAO, UNDP, UNICEF, UNFPA, UNIDROD, UNODC; WFP, and World Bank). In 2010 the DPG was enlarged to include members representing the civil society, such as the Ford Foundation and the Population Council.

The DPG plenary met 10 times in regular monthly meetings. A field visit and the yearly retreat, where the Situation Analysis was discussed, took place throughout the year.

All relevant UN Agencies and Development Partners will participate in the 2011 Paris Declaration Monitoring Survey.

Teams (including national counterparts), with clear roles and responsibilities. They are also being led by national institutions. ii. All the MDG-F joint programmes have two year communication and advocacy strategies. A documentary has been produced on climate change.

iii. For the FGM joint programmes additional resources were mobilized to cover the unfunded budget. iv. The horticulture and value chains JP is engaging private sector support in Upper Egypt; v. Factsheets have been developed for joint programmes to share information and keep all partners abreast of progress.

M&E of Joint Programmes

- End of programme evaluation reports completed for the JPs ending in 2010. M&E frameworks established for the new joint programmes.
- Mid-Term evaluations were conducted for the MDG-F JPs (Dahshour and Climate Change). For the CC JP, the final evaluation report was submitted to the NSC. Based on the recommendations, an improvement plan was completed by the programme management committee and endorsed by the NSC. It is currently being incorporated into the revised results framework. The joint programme on culture and development has completed a baseline study in Dahshour and the recommendations have been incorporated into the revised results framework.
- The MDG-F JPs have allocated funds for monitoring and evaluation and they have hired part-time M&E officers. UNDP is also providing RBM training to some programme teams.

E) HACT

Status of HACT implementation/compliance in the country

1. The WB was approached to deliver a presentation on the Public Financial Management System Macro-Assessment to the UN ExCom Agencies. 2. UNICEF will need to replicate the Macro-Assessment with MoFP / NCCM to other government counterparts. 3. HACT training to be conducted for all counterparts (Government / NGOs).

- The WB did not yet share the Macro-Assessment report since it is still in DRAFT format, and has not yet been cleared by the GoE. A presentation / briefing was given by the WB instead to UNICEF and UNFPA - and a Note for the Record document was developed and used to give an executive summary of the Macro-Assessment.

- Micro-Assessment has been conducted (by a contracted audit firm) for 38 NGOs. LoU signed with major government counterparts. HACT training for IP staff is planned for the 1st quarter of 2011.

Capacity development for gender theme groups to support UNCT to respond to national priorities for gender equality

Gender theme group has not been officially established (this will happen in 2011). Nevertheless, the UN Working Group on Women's Empowerment and Gender equality has supported the UNCT on mainstreaming gender in the Situation Analysis.

Establishment of Joint UN Team on AIDS and implementation of joint programme of support on AIDS

- Strengthening the national AIDS response (through reviewing the national strategic plan, developing an operational costed plan and strengthening the M&E system while expanding the multi-sectoral response).

- See JP document

- "The government of Egypt has submitted for the first time ever a report on HIV development for the UN General Assembly (UNGASS). This was done with heavy advocacy and assistance from the UNAIDS."

- "The process of developing the National Strategic Plan has been initiated in collaboration with AGAP of the World Bank. But has not been completed yet due to delays on behalf of the government in soliciting national partners' response. The NSF and its operational plan will be finalized by the end of March 2011."

- The National M&E system has been finalized piloted and is currently being rolled out on national level.

UN support to the national response to AIDS through operationalising the Three Ones

- UN support to operationalise the three priority outcome areas (reducing HIV sexual transmission, ensuring PLHIV are on treatment and reducing punitive laws) through a more coordinated and focused UN response.

- See JP document

- "The UN response is encompassed in the single Joint Programme of Support that is signed by 13 heads of agencies and countersigned by the government of Egypt. The programme is based on the National Strategic Plan on HIV/AIDS and is linked to UNDAF and UNGASS priority outcomes. UN support has been able to initiate programmes for key populations including prisoners, sex workers, Men who have sex with men and street children."

- The UN continues to provide support to capacitate the association of People Living with HIV and work on initiatives that combat stigma and discrimination such as huge advocacy campaigns on World AIDS Day, utilizing UN GoodWill Ambassadors and through the various media channels.

HIV/AIDS in the Workplace

- Strengthening the capacity of the UN staff to support national response and scaling up UN cares programme

- N. UN staff trained N. training sessions held

- The interagency working group on UN Cares has developed a two year plan that has been incorporated into the joint programme of support. The plan however was not entirely implemented due to lack of funds. UNITAID has co-funded a training of trainers program to make available a cadre of trainers available for the UN sessions. Two UN staff also participated in the UN cares facilitators training in Tunisia.

UNDG - RCAR 2010 - Egypt 8 / 19
Development/implementation of the UNCT communications/advocacy strategy & plan

Enhance the visibility/understanding of UN's support in terms of value added to Egypt's social and economic development.

Enhance the public/media profile of the UN activities/objectives in Egypt.

Encourage useful partnerships/volunteerism to achieving MDGs and UNDAF objectives in Egypt.

(Government, NGOs, private sector, Opinion leaders, Educators and academia).

UNCT common communications approach implemented focusing on:

- Creation of UNCT Newsletter and revamped UN website.
- Workplan implemented. UN Day celebrated. MDG Advocacy and Communications Plan developed and implemented.
- New bilingual website operational.

UNCT common communications approach was implemented: a monthly UNCT Newsletter was created and nine issues produced; a Facebook page was created and now has more than 1,625 members; a revamped website and a common MDG communication kit were prepared and will be launched by February 2011.

The UNCG, led by UNIC, helped produce and support many successful events such as Stand-Up Against Poverty, Pre-Launch of the International Year of Youths, the MDG awareness week at Cairo University.

UN Day was celebrated in a manner that enhanced the public and media profiles of the UN. First, through a blood drive for UN staff entitled "Thank You Egypt" then through a high-profile event attended by around 2,000 youths at Cairo University, raising awareness of the UN’s mandate and MDGs.

The UN received a lot of media coverage, resulting in a higher public profile of the UN in Egypt.

RCo Staffing
A well functioning office providing the necessary support services to the UN Country Teams and the Development Partners Group resulting in a strengthened coordination of the UN and the Development Partners. RCo Staffing contributes to UN Coordination and providing services to all UNCT wherever appropriate.

Client Satisfaction Survey to UNCT updated at end of 2010 and results are satisfactory. Number of UNVs.

The work of the UN Coordination Office is highly appreciated by the its clients (UNCT and DPG). UN coordination office has managed to mobilize resources from the UNCT for the sustainability of the office. The UNV field unit contributed to the UN Coordination Office by participating and providing input for the Situation Analysis and the UNDAF 2012-2016. In 2010 22 UNVs (both national and international) were serving in different UNCT agencies supporting projects in Egypt.

Coordination Procedures and Practices

In mid-2009, the Ministry of International Cooperation and the Development Partners Group (DPG), agreed to undertake the “Cairo Agenda for Action: A Mutual Strategy for Development Cooperation”. This decision was guided by two considerations: i) realization that Egypt has been experiencing a decline in external aid flows in recent years, in spite of the fact that it has a rather formidable set of development challenges and ii) recognition by both, the Government and its international development partners, that steps must be taken to improve the effectiveness of development cooperation in Egypt.

The Cairo Agenda for Action, or CAA, addresses the key principles embodied in the Paris Declaration and the Accra Agenda for Action on Aid Effectiveness. It has four components or deliverables: • Setting-up or strengthening of results-based management (RBM) arrangements for which the Government seeks the cooperation of international development partners; • A plan of action on aid effectiveness; • Identification of priority development areas; • Setting-up or strengthening of results-based management (RBM) arrangements in the lead ministry or council; and • A plan of action on aid effectiveness.

Lessons learned: Some of the lessons learned confirmed earlier findings such as the lack of coordination within and amongst national institutions (limited communication and information sharing). The UN and the DPG at large can play a role in supporting the ministry in the area of coordination, including information management. Other specific work areas that could be included in the plan of action will be identified through the next round of the Paris Declaration monitoring survey to be completed by early 2011.

the Government’s updated development priorities after deliberations on the Situation Analysis. Besides assistance in achieving the MDGs, six other priorities are intended to guide its development partners in their strategic planning processes and in setting future policies and work plans.

In responding to the third deliverable “strengthening of results-based management (RBM) arrangements,” the Government has designated the Ministry of State for Administrative Development (MSAD) to become a “centre of excellence” and provide RBM services to other Ministries in a systematic effort to improve the management of development cooperation. A UN support project will be implemented in early 2011 to assist the MSAD.

Finally, the fourth deliverable is a plan of action on aid effectiveness that embraces the other three deliverables and additional dimensions of aid effectiveness, such as mutual accountability mechanisms and strengthening the aid information management. Other specific work areas that could be included in the plan of action will be identified through the next round of the Paris Declaration monitoring survey to be completed by early 2011.
