Support to Transitional Justice in Kosovo (STJK)
What is the Joint Project Support to Transitional Justice in Kosovo (STJK)?

- The Joint Project 'Support to Transitional Justice in Kosovo' (STJK) is a joint UNDP, OHCHR and UN Women project under the umbrella of the United Nations Kosovo Team (UNKT). The STJK's goal is to support the Government of Kosovo's Inter-Ministerial Working Group on Dealing with the Past and Reconciliation (IMWG) to fulfil its mandate, to strengthen the capacities of civil society, to contribute to a transitional justice process in a constructive and critical manner and, to increase public and stakeholder awareness concerning transitional justice.

- The design, implementation, and sequencing of activities will be informed by the needs, capacities, and priorities of the IMWG, in line with the principle of local ownership and human rights standards.

What will STJK achieve?

- The STJK will support and facilitate the work of project partners in drafting a “national strategy” on dealing with the past and reconciliation that includes those transitional justice mechanisms they see most suitable for Kosovo.

- A conducive environment for a transitional justice process will be created supporting the capacity of partners and beneficiaries to engage in a comprehensive, gender-sensitive transitional justice process and enhancing public and stakeholder awareness of and participation in transitional justice in Kosovo.

Why Support to Transitional Justice in Kosovo (STJK)?

- Kosovo is marked by a largely unaddressed legacy of violations of human rights and international humanitarian law.

- In order to ensure accountability, serve justice and achieve reconciliation, Kosovo needs to address its legacy through inclusive, participatory, victim-centred and gender-sensitive mechanisms.
