Launch of the Sri Lanka Human Development Report on Youth

Titled “Youth and Development: Towards a More Inclusive Future”

Human Development Reports have been commissioned and published by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) since 1990 as intellectually independent, empirically grounded analysis of development issues, trends, progress and policies. The ultimate goal of the reports is to help advance human development. In parallel to global HDRs, individual countries have been producing National Human Development Reports (NHDRs), reflecting country level issues that have an impact on human development.

UNDP in Sri Lanka will be launching the third Sri Lanka National Human Development Report on the 12th of August coinciding with the International Youth Day.

Sri Lanka’s third NHDR in 2014 examines the pivotal role of Sri Lankan youth. “Youth and Development: Towards a More Inclusive Future” considers the opportunities and challenges youth face as the nation progresses through the 21st century.
