

Joint Police Programme II

The Programme helps enhance the efficiency, effectiveness, transparency, and accountability of police service delivery to Somali citizens, while supporting the institutional and operational capacities of the federal and state-level security and police institutions, with a focus on human rights and gender responsive measures.

BACKGROUND

Years of conflict in Somalia have eroded public trust and weakened the police force's capacity. The partial implementation of the 2016 New Policing Model has led to fragmented structures, inconsistent practices, and limited coordination across federal and state levels.

The police remain under-resourced, understated, and operate under the threat of militias and Al-Shabaab. Women's exclusion from the force further undermines its effectiveness.

The Joint Police Programme II (JPP II) seeks to address these challenges by strengthening institutional capacity and rebuilding community trust in policing.
