Libyan CSOs Mapping Report

Executive Summary

The political and economic situation in Libya remains unstable with rising youth and women unemployment rates and unequal employment opportunities. However, Libyan Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) have the potential to play a crucial role in improving livelihoods and promoting local economic development, meeting the needs of local communities, and helping to resolve the economic and social challenges facing the country.

As part of UNDP Libya's Local Peacebuilding and Resilience efforts, with generous funding by the European Union through the Emergency Trust Fund for Africa in partnership with the Ministry of Local Government, Tadamon¹ and IOM Libya, a comprehensive CSO mapping assignment was conducted between August and September 2022 to identify active CSOs, build a reliable database, and enable effective engagement between CSOs and other stakeholders in Libya's development ecosystem. This includes:

- Mapping the CSO and stakeholder ecosystem.
- Developing an organizational design, project, and financial management curriculum for CSOs.
- Organizing a nation-wide campaign to engage CSOs in digital trainings and a crowdfunding academy.

As a result of this mapping assessment, 143 active CSOs were identified and engaged with a series of workshops and training sessions. It is expected that these CSOs will play an important role in supporting government efforts for sustainable development and peacebuilding, with a particular focus on youth and women. The full list of the mapped CSOs can be found in the Annex of this report.

¹ Tadamon, a global UNDP NGO empowerment programme established in partnership with the Islamic Development Bank (IsDB), focuses on strengthening Civil Society Organizations and social enterprises to promote citizen participation, enhance sustainability, and alleviate poverty in order to accelerate progress towards the SDGs. The programme is currently being implemented in Lebanon, Kazakhstan, Somalia, Tunisia, Indonesia, Morocco, Palestine, Pakistan, Burkina Faso, Senegal, Iraq, Maldives, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, Niger, Jordan, Yemen, Sudan, Yemen and Comoros. To increase the capacity of the CSOs, Tadamon offers specific training to launch crowdfunding campaigns and fundraise from the public.

Introduction

Background

This report is the result of research conducted in Libya between August and September 2022. A comprehensive desk review, coupled with an outreach campaign using social media and other forms of communication, was conducted in order to identify and qualify Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) across the country to participate in the UNDP initiative, “CSO Mapping and Capacity Building Training for Libyan CSO”. The aim of the desk review was to generate an initial list of CSOs with their contact information, addresses and nature of activities.

In July 2022, UNDP contracted a consultancy firm, Team Libya, to conduct a country-wide mapping and organizational assessment of CSO as well as to further develop comprehensive training content for them particularly focused on Project and Financial Management and Organizational Design.

Since 2011, Libyan CSOs and activists have become more willing to address the local needs of their communities in collaboration with the local authorities and municipalities. Considering the ongoing political uncertainty and the difficult economic situation in Libya which is characterized by rising youth unemployment and unequal livelihood opportunities, CSOs play a vital role in advancing livelihoods, promoting local economic development and social cohesion and addressing the needs of local communities, including the most vulnerable categories.

Methodology

Collection of data

The mapping process began with the collection of data and information from CSOs across Libya, using an electronic form. Participating CSOs were requested to submit their relevant information such as a License of Practice from the Civil Society Commission (CSC), internal policies, previous contracts and agreements with international or local organizations, financial reports/budgets, and reference letters.

Outreach campaign

Promotion of the online form was undertaken via various social media platforms as well as through high traffic websites such as Libyan Tenders - one of Libya's most frequented professional websites. Additionally, direct outreach was made to numerous CSOs.

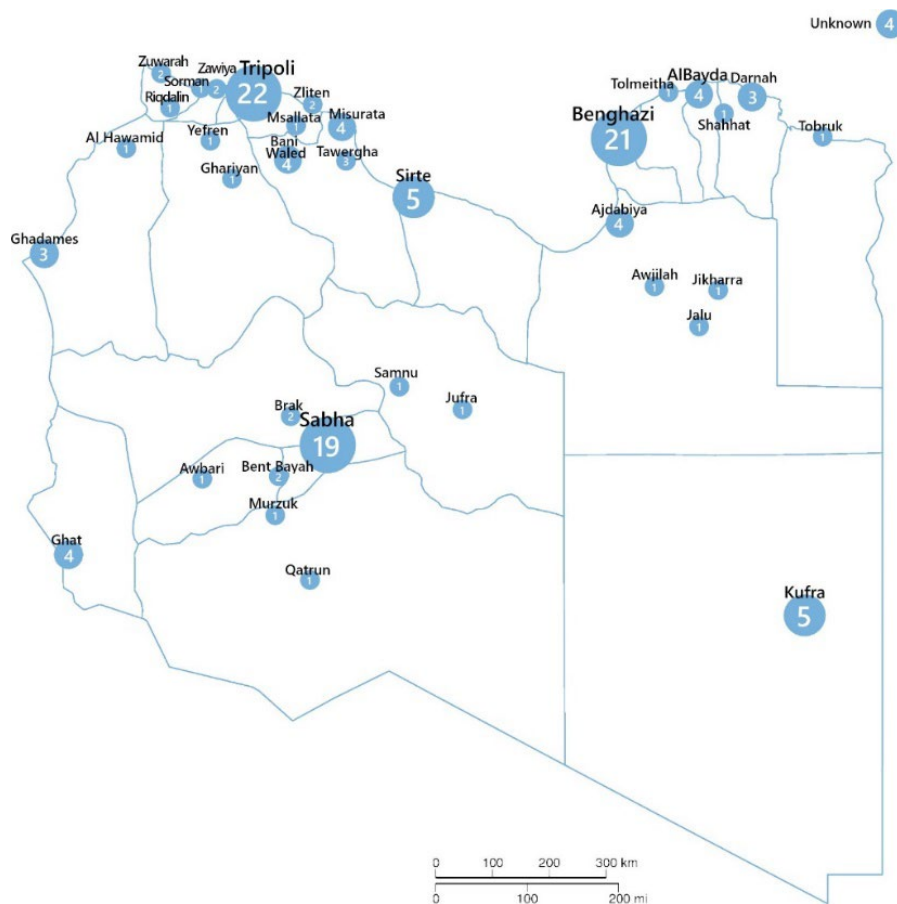

Sample of social media posts

Data Collection and First Screening

A total of 420 CSOs were identified and mapped through the Google Form applications and multiple sources. Priority was given to CSOs focused on humanitarian assistance, vocational training (such as Women Training Centers) and peacebuilding activities. After basic screening and validation to ensure they met the agreed upon conditions of participation, the number of applications decreased to 143. To maximize this opportunity, CSOs that were in the process of registering with the CSC were accepted, provided that they completed registration before continuing with the programme.

All data from the 143 CSOs was compiled in an Excel Sheet, containing all important information as well as a classification according to experience to provide an initial rapid assessment regarding the capabilities of these organizations. This classification divided the CSOs into four categories:

1. Organizations with experience in project implementation with international organizations.
2. Organizations with experience in project implementation with local organizations or authority.
3. Organizations that lacked project implementation experience with other organizations (local/international) and had not previously received funding from local or international organizations.
4. Newly founded CSOs with little to no experience.

Results of CSOs Mapping

Geographical distribution of mapped CSOs

As illustrated in the figure below, the distribution of CSOs was as follows: South (29%), East (30%) and West (41%):

Focus areas of mapped CSOs

Analysis of activities conducted by Libyan CSOs revealed that they rarely focus on one specific activity or thematic area. Generally, they prefer to conduct cross-cutting activities or ad-hoc activities to provide support to beneficiaries based on actual needs and available funding. Figure 2 shows that organizations engaged in building peace and social cohesion constitute the majority.

Level of experience of mapped CSOs

Despite the nascent nature of civil society in Libya, numerous registered CSOs have contact with national and/or international NGOs. Most of the interactions with international NGOs are based on donorship whilst those with local Libyan NGOs are based on collaboration on various projects. There are also CSOs that have not interacted with any other organizations and relied solely on donations from the local community or businessmen. The "Newly Established" category of organizations is composed of those that have yet to embark on a project.

Year of establishment of mapped CSOs

Many CSOs were established to occupy a newly created space for Civil Society actors following the revolution of 2011. However, growth in civil society began to slow in mid-2013 and has further declined due to the onset of the crisis in mid-2014. This decrease is attributed to the lack of a safe operating environment, the fracturing of society, the economic recession, and decline of foreign donors. The graph below indicates a slight improvement after 2015 when the situation became more secure than the preceding two years.

Online presence of mapped CSOs

Upon initial screening, it was discovered that the majority of CSOs depended heavily on social media (predominately Facebook) and have inactive websites. Furthermore, only a small portion utilizes professional email addresses, with the majority of CSOs utilizing Gmail and Yahoo email addresses.

Results of CSOs Mapping

This CSO mapping exercise has been done through online outreach; thus, this may not represent the full list of CSOs operating in Libya as of 2022. Team Libya, with the support of UNDP, has used various tools for the outreach, primarily through social media as well as through reference mechanisms with various UN projects and INGOs. In addition, the CSO Commissions in Benghazi and Tripoli assisted in circulating outreach messages among their CSO networks and social media.

Although formal databases of CSOs are maintained by the CSO Commissions in Benghazi and Tripoli, some records need to be updated. As such, voluntary submissions of CSOs' information were found to be the most appropriate mechanism to portray the state of CSOs active in Libya. Despite these barriers, it was still possible to assemble a wide range of organizations with varying natures, experiences, and geographical locations.

As a next step, the 143 identified CSOs were invited to participate in online trainings organized in March 2023. The training curriculum included Project Management, Financial Management, and Organizational Design. This capacity building programme is coupled with financial support provided by UNDP, other agencies, and initiatives in Libya.

Finally, the CSOs were also invited to apply for the Tadamon Crowdfunding Academy which offers training by national and international crowdfunding specialists on how to develop crowdfunding campaigns as well as connecting with potential partners and supporters. Upon completion of the training course, selected CSOs will have the opportunity to develop their crowdfunding campaigns through e-learning tools and offline trainings.
