10th Anniversary of the International Year of Volunteers (IYV+10)

United Nations Volunteers (UNV) India is proud to be part of the Global Call of Action to celebrate the 10th Anniversary of International Year of Volunteers. It will be engaged in a number of initiatives to mark the tenth anniversary of IYV in India and offer chance to raise the profile of volunteering and mobilize many more volunteers.

In November 1997, the United Nations General Assembly proclaimed 2001 as the International Year of Volunteers. UN General Assembly provided a valuable framework and established a favorable environment leading to a more strategic use of volunteer contributions. UNV was designated as the focal point.

In celebrating IYV+10, we commemorate volunteering as an expression of our common humanity and as a means of building mutual respect, understanding, trust, solidarity and reciprocity. We embrace volunteering as universal and inclusive, and recognize volunteering in its diversity, as well as the purpose that sustains it: a firm belief in the values of equality, solidarity, civic engagement as well as individual and collective freedoms.

(Quote from the UNV Vision Statement)

National Committee on IYV+10

The first IYV+10 planning meeting was organized on 16 February, 2011 in New Delhi by UNV Country Office. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss formulation of the National Committee and taskforce to plan IYV+10 activities. Twenty organizations participated in the meeting and included representatives from the Government, UN agencies, civil society organizations, educational institutes, media and corporate houses.

UNDP India announced formulation of the National Committee on IYV+10 in consultation with the Government. The committee is represented by an array of stakeholders from the Government, NGOs, media, academic institutions and corporate sector. It is co-chaired by the Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports and United Nations Development Programme.

Along with the National Committee for IYV+10, four taskforces have also been formulated based on the four pillars of IYV+10: Recognition, Facilitation, Networking and Promotion.

During his visit in Madhya Pradesh, Mr. Chhetri met with three local NGOs (PRADHAN, Swami Vivekanand Shiksha Samiti, Mahila Chetna Manch) and UNICEF State Chief in Bhopal. The focus of the discussion with all these organizations remained on IYV+10 events, collaboration with UNV and promotion of volunteerism. A primary school was visited by Mr. Chhetri in Rajgarh where a young student of class eight was teaching students of class third as a volunteer. Mr. Devendra Sharma, a member of the working committee of Ahimsa Welfare Society informed that Ahimsa was running a project called Bal Chetna for awareness raising among the school children. The discussion in Khargaon focused on how the 10th anniversary of IYV could enhance people's participation in the planning steps. Mr. Kedar Sharma, District Collector agreed to organize a large scale programme in the district in support of Nehru Yuva Kendra, Jan Abhiyan Parishad and Farmer Club NABARD. Mr. Ratnesh Vijayvargiya of Janabhiyan Parishad presented a brief report on the youth volunteers' groups.

Chhattisgarh

Mr. Chhetri met with the District Collector, Mr. Rajpal Singh Tyagi in Korba and discussed how to strengthen the planning process and recognize volunteerism as a powerful force through IYV+10. Mr. Tyagi expressed willingness to support recognition of volunteers on special days. Mr. Chhetri also met with Mr. A.K Sinha, District Project Officer, and Literacy Mission to understand how volunteers are mobilized for Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan (SSA)—education for all campaign. Mr. Sinha shared success story of a woman named Ms. Laxmi Bai who lives at Badebuka block at Pali. She was awarded by the Chief Minister for her exemplary contributions to the SSA activities. Local NGO whom Mr. Chhetri met have mobilized volunteers for addressing health related issues. NGOs were encouraged to celebrate contributions of volunteers during IYV+10 events in 2011.

In Surguja the discussions focused on providing support to the planning, particularly for vertical and horizontal convergence with line-departments. It also covered volunteerism and IYV+10. Mr. Chhetri highlighted NYK, NSS, NGOs, and CBOs contribution to DSO and district administration and advised facilitating the process of convergence of line-department to create a model of convergence in the district promoting spirit of volunteerism. Two NGOs (MSSVP and Path Pradarshak) were visited by Mr. Chhetri and advised to organize 'Green Surguja Campaign' mobilizing thousands of volunteers and making them aware of the planning process. He also advised DSO to organize joint activity for community mobilization and decentralized planning at the block level with the support of volunteers.

Following an interaction with women and men in Jashpur, Mr. Chhetri discussed how community is being mobilized for their own holistic development. A meeting was also held with a local NGO representative and master trainer Dr. Mithilesh Mishra, secretary of Tribal and Rural Development Society. Mr. Chhetri encouraged him to organize events for recognition of volunteers and develop a NGO network in the district to facilitate the planning process at the block level.

Women's Day Celebration in Jabalpur

A one day meeting of Elected Women Representatives (EWR) was organized on 8 March, 2011 at MGSIRD, Jabalpur in Madhya Pradesh on the occasion of International Women's Day. The objective of the meeting was to encourage participants to form an EWR network.

The Director of MGSIRD, Jabalpur, inaugurated the event in which about 35 EWR's from 13 different districts participated. The importance of networking of women was discussed during the orientation. All EWR suggested a handholding support to make the networking of women more effective and sustainable in other districts.

EWR supports network of women in the village and encourages them to participate in the decision making process of the Gramsabha. A study carried out in 2010, in two sample blocks of Mandla (tribal block) and Jabalpur districts under the CDLG project highlighted that women actively participate in the village development process when supported by EWR. These findings were discussed during a workshop of EWR in November, 2010. A networking structure at the village, block and district level was proposed during the workshop and was shared with the Panchayat Raj Development GoMP. The initiatives to organize and facilitate all these activities were taken by UNVs.

Village Volunteer Transform their Village

The village called Hiwre-Bajar in Ahmednagar district of Maharashtra demonstrates how volunteerism can transform livelihood. It is a well known village in India that has transformed itself into a developed village where the Gramsabha is empowered by community volunteers.

This transformation was made possible by a group of 9-10 volunteers during late 1980's. They inspired the entire village to participate in village development through various activities such as watershed project, change in agriculture pattern, dairy development and animal husbandry. All these development activities helped Hiwre-Bajar to become a model village in India. At present 223 families reside in Hiwre-Bajar and every household is above poverty line with an average family income of more than Rs. 30,000 per annum. This model is replicable to CDDP project districts as well.
